

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

HOW WE RAISED OUR MONEY FOR THE MEMORIAL FUND

Dear Editor: The Hurley Hospital Training School gave an invalid party on January 29, in the Nurses' Home for the benefit of the Florence Nightingale Training School in Bordeaux, France. About fifty guests were present, the members of the intermediate class acting as hostesses. The first part of the program consisted of dancing in the parlors which had been cleared for the purpose. Music was furnished by some members of the school. Then the guests, or "patients," were ushered to the class rooms that had been converted, by the nurses, into doctors' offices and operating rooms. One sign read: Dr. I Believe, Diagnostician; another one, Dr. Perry Cardium, Heart Specialist; and others were, Drs. T. B. Thin, I. M. Stout and I. C. and Hear. From the office of Dr. I. Believe the patients were referred to the different specialists according to the symptoms described. Many amusing diagnoses were made. Last of all came the attractive apartments of Madame Vanity, the Beauty Specialist, from which the patrons emerged with highly colored cheeks, eyebrows and eyelashes darkened, some with powdered hair, others with moustaches and all with beaming countenances. About this time there was heard the clang of the police ambulance and in came the night supervisor, with an air of grave authority, followed by two stalwart police officers, bearing on a stretcher the form of what appeared to be a badly torn and bruised sailor lad. Then followed a number of people who, it appeared, had been in a wreck. Some were suffering from shock, others had lacerations and contusions of a greater or lesser degree. Of course, with so many doctors present, first aid was given immediately, and after a little of the camouflage was removed, our patients proved to be senior and graduate nurses from our own ranks, turning the joke on the hostesses and creating much merriment. After refreshments, every one returned to the parlors where dancing was enjoyed until the hour of closing. The juniors gave splendid service by relieving members of the intermediate class who were on night duty. A nominal fee was cheerfully paid for consultations, as well as for the dances.

Michigan

SARAH COOPER,
Member of the Intermediate Class.